Camp Summary

At Philosophy Camp, students will work together to think carefully about classic philosophical readings by engaging in counselor led reading groups and discussions. Students will write reflections every day in order to articulate their ideas and, with the help of the counseling staff, will revise their entries in an effort to develop well-formed arguments.

Camp Mission

At Philosophy Camp, students will be introduced to some of the most influential ideas of the Western Philosophical Tradition.

This camp is a chance for students to develop skills in critical thinking, logical debate, and improve their writing ability. We encourage students to reflect and explore philosophical issues surrounding the following questions:

- “What is morality?”,
- “What are our civic responsibilities?”,
- “What does it mean to be free?”,
- “What does it mean to argue well?”,
- “What does it mean to know something?”, and
- “What does it mean for something to be real?”.

Cost of Attendance

Tuition is free.

Tax-deductible donations to the UK Philosophy Department's Development Fund are more than welcome. Donations can be made by check or money order. They should be made out to “The University of Kentucky” with “UK Philosophy Department's Development Fund/ Camp” in the memo line. Donations are essential to our running a successful camp this summer and for ensuring more camps in the future. We are committed to providing this camp at no cost to the student and this is only made possible with your support.
